HEMEROCALLIS

✓ Daylilies ✓

Spring 1950

You will receive large, strong plants of fine, selected varieties that you will be proud to grow in your garden. By planting these this Spring many will bloom for you the first summer.

About one-half of the Daylilies offered are mentioned in the yearbook of the Hemerocallis Society as among the most popular varieties—see page 130 of the 1949 yearbook—and while most of the others are newer and not so well known, as of yet, they will “hold their own” in the Hemerocallis world for many years to come.

add just the right touch to your garden to bring out the charm and excitement you have been looking for. They are easily grown, and are so effective in the perennial border, in the foreground of the shrubbery border, for naturalizing through partly shaded woods, along the banks of lakes and streams and are adaptable to any climate. They can be planted any time of the year when the ground is not frozen, but our experience has been that they do better if planted in the spring or just after they are through blooming. DO NOT PLANT YOUR HEMEROCALLIS TOO DEEP. Spread your roots well out and allow for one inch of soil over where the roots join the crown of the plant.

The rapid development and improvement in Hemerocallis is giving us splendid new varieties to brighten our gardens at a time of year when there is a scarcity of bloom in our borders. We now have beautiful Daylilies, up to eight inches across, in shades that vary from pinks, reds, wines, maroon to purple, in many interesting shapes and forms.
